REFUSE TO LEAVE DANGEROUS HOUSE

Inspector Beck Unable to Proceed, Owing to Absence of Statute.

Attempts on the part of Building Inspector Beck to persuade the occupants of a house on lower Main Street, believed to be unsafe, to vacate, have so far proved futile, and the inspector's office in the absence of any specific statute on the subject, has about reached the limit of its authority. The house in question stands at 204 East Main Street, and is said to be owned by Mrs. O. A. James. After an examination of the walls, on complaint of the neighbors, Inspector Beck notified the owner and agent on June 11th that the building was in need of repairs. Nothing has been done, and the tenants continue to occupy the quarters.

Mr. Beck called on the Mayor yesterday for further instructions, and was referred to the City Attorney. Mr. Pollard told him that there was at present no statute by which the tenants could be removed from an unsafe building. Pending the passage of a new law about which the Council has been working for many months, there seems to be no definite authority, the police department having decided that it cannot interfere until a house actually begins to fall.

A committee from the School Board met last night to confer with a subcommittee from the Finance Committee in regard to the immediate needs of the schools, but the members of the Finance Committee failed to show up.

FLAGS IN CAROLINA ROOM

Historic Virginia Emblems Safely Guarded at Confederate Museum.

Acting under a resolution of the recent General Assembly, all of the Confederate flags retained to the State of Virginia by the United States government and which have for several years been in cases in the corridors of the State Capitol, have been turned over to the Confederate Memorial Literary Society to be kept in the Confederate Museum, at Twelfth and Clay Streets, the old Davis mansion.

On conference with the museum authorities it was found that the Virginia room was already overcrowded, and through the courtesy of Mrs. J. A. Hodges, recent space was found for the flags and cases in the North Carolina room where the flags property labelled are now on exhibition.

Colonel John W. Richardson, Registrar of the Land Office, received an official acknowledgment of the receipt of the flags from Mrs. J. Enders Robinson, corresponding secretary of the society, and action has been taken by the organization tendering its thanks to the State of Virginia for the gift.

WIZARD OF THE CUE

Professor Lowther, of New York City, a champion billiard shot, gave an exhibition at the Jefferson Hotel last night, and astounded the spectators by his playing. Using his finger as a cue, Professor Lowther accomplished shots that would be impossible for an ordinary player to make with a cue. The wizard of the game is a personal friend of Mr. W. W. Calvin, and through him has issued a challenge to meet any one in the State at the Jefferson to-night in a 100 or no count straight-rail billiard match. It is assured that the match will be held, as at least two local players have signified their intention of accepting. There will be no admission to see the match, and a large crowd is expected to attend.

ELECT CRUTCHFIELD DESPITE CHARGES FILED BY MAXWELL

Joint Session Decides to Order Investigation and Appoints Committee.

Charges preferred by Thomas Maxwell against Police Justice John J. Crutchfield resulted in a debate of more than an hour at the joint session of the Common Council and Board of Aldermen last night, the body finally electing Justice Crutchfield for a term of two years, and appointing a committee of five, to which was referred the communication of Mr. Maxwell for investigation and report.

The joint session was called for the purpose of electing various city officials, the entire election carrying out the program laid down by the joint caucus held a few weeks ago. The elections were thought to be a mere perfunctory ratification of the acts of the caucus, and an understanding of conversation in the Council chamber the clerk called the names of the City Engineer, the City Attorney and other officials.

Apparently no interest was being taken in the proceedings until the clerk called for nominations for the position of Justice appointed to hold the Police Court, Justice Crutchfield having nominated Mr. Lynch at this point asked whether charges had been made against this official, and President Gunst said a sealed envelope addressed to the two branches of the Council had been placed in his hands.

There was a general disposition to disperse with the reading of the paper, but its reading was called for, and although twice interrupted with motions to stop it, the paper was heard by the joint session at length.

In his complaint Mr. Maxwell cited a series of cases told him by others and from his own observation, in which he claimed that justice had not been properly administered, charging the court with dictatorial and haughty methods. There were signs of considerable amusement in the chamber as the reading progressed, although the members toward the end seemed to realize the gravity of the situation.

Bringing London to the front. After citing the case of a man named George, Virginia Anderson, against Mrs. Grace Scott Giffen, the leading lady in the Giffen Company, which is playing at the Academy of Music, for certain costumes furnished Mrs. Giffen for that amount.

Inasmuch as the actress is a non-resident and was preparing to leave the State shortly, the action was brought in the City Circuit Court instead of through the office of the High Court. It is understood that Mrs. Anderson, who is a daughter of Mr. Thomas B. Hicks, of Richmond, furnished certain costumes to the actress since the stock company has been playing here. The action taken will prevent the removal of this property from the jurisdiction of the court until a hearing is had at the fall term.

JOHN J. CRUTCHFIELD.

In the Hustings Court, the complaint took up the case of S. J. London, the merchant convicted of selling cocaine, making the insinuation that at the request of London the court and committee a case at less than the amount of the fine imposed, although the woman involved paid the full fine into London's hands to secure her freedom. This portion of the paper was involved and rambling, with many exclamations and interjections, and it was difficult for the members to get the import of the charges.

Passing to his personal experiences, Maxwell charged that he had been himself arrested on Christmas Eve, on what charge he did not state, taken to a police station, kept in the telephone to call assistance, kept in a private room until the morning of the 26th of December, when, although found not guilty, he was required to give a bond of $300, which he had to send to friends in St. Louis to furnish.

A considerable parliamentary tangle followed the reading of the paper, motions to receive and file, to refer to the Police Justice, and to lay on the table, being made almost simultaneously. President Gunst unraveled the situation, stating clearly the precedence of the various motions, and after a prolonged debate in which it was held that the Police Justice had a right to be heard in his own defense, a motion to receive and file the communication was lost—yeas, 18; noes, 20.

Elected Despite Complaint.

In the debate it became evident that while Justice Crutchfield had the full confidence of the body, it was the view of his best friends that he should have an opportunity to seriously meet the charges, and after many motions, Mr. Graham Hobson moved that the communication be referred to a committee of five to report to either branch.

President Gunst ruled that the joint session could not appoint such a committee, and that any committee it appointed would have to report to a joint session. Mr. Hobson accepted the ruling of the chair, and after further debate on the merits of the proposition, the motion to so refer was adopted—yeas, 26; noes, 11.

The body then decided to go on with the election of a police justice, and Justice Crutchfield was unanimously re-elected for the ensuing two years.

At the close of the session President Gunst announced the following committee investigation of the charges: Messrs. Graham B. Hobson, John J. Lynch, D. M. White, J. B. Wood and John Man.

All other city officers nominated in the caucus, including Fire Commissioners Lecky and Cheatwood, Police Commissioner Lecky, and Health Commissioner James H. Gordon, were unanimously elected.

President Gunst presented a communication from the Mayor asking the city to appoint a representative on the board of trustees of the Confederate Memorial Association, Judge Geo. J. Williams was unanimously elected to the position.

At a special meeting of the board of directors of the Ex-Prisoners Aid Society, held last night, the Rev. George H. Wiley, who has been the superintendent and active force of the society for the last two years, announced that his increasing engagements as an evangelist would prevent him from devoting to the society the steady work he has given heretofore.

The board, after considering the matter, authorized the president to employ an agent to take up Mr. Wiley's work until such time as he may be more at liberty. It is hoped that the Rev. Arthur B. Sharpe, superintendent of the Methodist Institute, at Nineteenth and Main Streets, may be induced to accept of the position, Mr. Wiley much assisting and being familiar with the details of the society's endeavors.

Audience from all Parts of World Enthusiastically Received Mr. Goodman, of Williamsburg--Virginians in London Entertained at Many Functions.

Writing to The Times-Dispatch from London, the Rev. Thomas C. Darst, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, gives the following interesting account of the Pan-Anglican Congress and the entertainment of Virginia representatives:

"The great Pan-Anglican Congress which opened in the historic Westminster Abbey on Monday of this week has attracted hundreds of Americans to London, and in many of the larger hotels the registers show the names of men and women from almost every section of the United States and Canada.

"Among those from Virginia at present in London in attendance upon the Pan-Anglican Congress are the Rt. Rev. Robert A. Gibson, D. D., Bishop of Virginia, who is the guest of the Lord Bishop of London, at Fulham Palace; the Rev. Archdeacon Neve, of Virginia, who is stopping with relatives in Kent; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bryson, of Richmond, and Mr. Joseph Wilmer, of Orange county, at the St. Ermins; Mr. Peter Mayo and family, of Richmond, at the Queensberry; and the Rev. Thomas C. Darst, of Richmond, who is the guest of the principal of St. John's College, London, and who is acting as chaplain to the Bishop of Virginia; the Rev. and Mrs. W. L. Kinsolving, of Barton Heights; Miss Sallie Stuart, of Alexandria; Rev. W. A. R. Goodwin, of the Queen Anne Mansions; the Rev. of Norfolk; the Rev. W. H. K. Pendleton, of Wytheville, and many others.
